High school board of education changes face

By JULIE MURPHY
Staff Reporter

No incumbent candidates were elected to Antioch Community High School's board of education. There were no huge upsets and no one candidate received more than 13 percent of the votes cast; the exception being Joyce Heneberry who ran unopposed to fill the remaining two years of the term vacated last fall.

Vickie Axton, Kathleen Van Dien and Dave Dziki will take over as the new board of education members for Sandy Jacobs, Edward Koziorowski and Kathy Werchek. Jacobs came closest to holding her seat on the board losing to Dziki by 26 votes.

Van Dien and Dziki both ran with the support of Mayor Taso Maravelas and on a platform of ridding the high school of drugs.

"I'm glad we're going to be working together," said Van Dien to Dziki. "I'm on a mission. I'm going to get in there and I'm going to change it (the high school's drug policy)."

Van Dien also used the celebration party at JT's Roadhouse to announce her pregnancy.

Dziki said he sees the opportunity on the school board as a chance to "spread the gospel." He said he was inspired to run for a seat on the board of education by the dynamics at the high school.

"We need to do something about it (drugs) right away," he said. "The high school is not a separate entity, but part of the community."

Village board incumbents keep their seat

By JULIE MURPHY
Staff Reporter

With the exception of Trustee Wayne Foresta, who did not run for re-election, the board of trustees of the village of Antioch remains intact.

Mary Turner is the newcomer to the board and the big winner of the election pulling in 1,157 votes or 22 percent. Incumbent Larry Hanson brought in almost as big a share with 1,133 votes and incumbent Barbara Porch brought in nearly 20 percent with 1,030 votes cast in her favor.

Turner said she was overwhelmed and ready to start working.

"I've learned a lot from running a grassroots campaign and going out and talking to people," she said. "I'm going to remember what I learned and bring it with me."

She added that she looks forward to working with board and sent out congratulations to Hanson and Porch. "I'm really looking forward to being part of this board."

For Hanson, it was his third time being elected as trustee, once in the '90s and now for the second consecutive time.

"I'm looking forward to working with Barbara (Porch) for another four years, and I think having Mary (Turner) in the mix shouldn't change things too much," he said. "I think we'll be able to continue working toward the goals we've started, and I'm glad for that."

Hanson said he thinks the next two years will give the mayor credibility, as he had to spend the last two years cleaning up Antioch's financial mess.

"It's tremendous that the financial picture of Antioch has been turned around in just two years," he said. "That's quite an accomplishment and it paves the way for other village projects. I would like for the board to look at some of the underground infrastructure. We know there are things down there that have been that way for 100 years."

Of her re-election Porch said, "I'm happy, but disappointed the village didn't want as big of a change as what I had thought."

She also said the next year would be critical to the future of Antioch. "We are going to have to step back and take a good look at the Comprehensive Plan and decide what we want for the village," she said. "This is an important task we have before us."

Write-in candidate George Close pledged to back in two years. "I'm saving my signs," he said. "Any of you who have them in your yards, save them for me."

Ralph Antonelli expressed disappointment, but said the election was not life or death. "My kid's in Iraq right now, and that's what is really important to me," he said. "We just got a letter that was sent out March 19. My thoughts are over there."

1 of 3 elementary districts gets ed fund increase

By JULIE MURPHY
Staff Reporter

Grass Lake School District 36 lost big even if the vote count was only off by 23 votes. It's educational fund increase referendum failed for a second time, with 52 percent voting against the measure to save the school from financial hardship.

Last spring, the small district was not lucky enough to stave off financial woes with a one-year waiver of the tax cap for the 2002 levy year. The measure would have provided the school with money needed, about $300,000, to keep the school running without having to revert to cuts.

The board of education decided to seek a straight Education Fund increase rather than another tax waiver for last November's election as well as this one. To keep the school afloat, about $800,000 in tax anticipation warrants have been issued. This action allows the school to borrow against future property tax revenues.

"It's really robbing Peter to pay Paul," said Supt. James Beveridge. "Somewhere down the line, we'll have a cash flow problem because of it. This money is outstanding."

Antioch Community Consolidated District 34 also failed to gain approval of its educational fund referendum, though it was put before voters in the district for the first time.

"We're in crisis here," said Eric Skoog, principal of Antioch Upper Grade School, part of Antioch Community Consolidated District 34. "We're not looking for fancy things here."

Authorities from all three districts blame the state, and it's lack of support, for part of their woes. "Illinois is 49 out of 50 states for the resources it offers in education," said Skoog. "Illinois is number 49 and North Dakota is number 50."

Emmons School District 33 had proposed several areas in which programs would be cut if its referendum were to fail for a second time, but it will not have to fall back on those measures. The referendum was approved by 57 percent over 43 percent.

In addition to their solo performances, Catherine Dinklenburg, Samantha Kozenski and Kady Lynch performed as a trio and received a perfect score from the judges, earning them a gold medal in the trio category.

Woman's club sponsors art show

For sixteen years the Antioch Woman's Club has sponsored a special art show for area schools. This year's show will be held at Antioch Community High School (ACHS) on April 25-26 from 6:30-8:30 p.m. on Friday and from 10 a.m.-2 p.m. on Saturday.

According to Ann Hansen, art co-chair for the club, schools generally provide live entertainment during the show as well. A refreshment table will be provided by the Antioch Woman's Club.

On Saturday morning, each participating school will be awarded with the following: two first-place ribbons, two second-place ribbons and 10 honorable-mention ribbons. On Saturday afternoon two best-of-show ribbons will be awarded, one that is judges' choice and the other visitors' choice.

The following schools were invited to participate in this show: Antioch Upper Grade School, Emmons School, Grass Lake School, Faith Lutheran Evangelical School, Millburn School, Palombi Middle School, Prince of Peace School and ACHS.

The show is open to the public and free of charge.

Preschoolers benefit from high school creativity

By JULIE MURPHY
Staff Reporter

Who would think a class called Business Tech Lab II would be filled with 3, 4 and 5-year-olds sitting at computers working with high school students? The preschoolers who attend Antioch Community High School's Little Sequoit Preschool got to take an in-school field trip to the class to play interactive computer games created by the students.

The games were created by two-student teams and covered topics often covered in preschool curricula such as shapes, animals, bugs, sports, colors, the alphabet, transportation, numbers, body parts and jobs. The youngsters got to switch stations and play various games, each taking about 5 minutes to complete.

"We had to think about what we could do that kids would like and identify with," said Anthony Alaziz, a sophomore in the class. "That's how we came up with the idea of having the kids match cartoon characters with the colors."

In addition to combining graphic elements with simple animation, the students had to add audio instructions as the intended users would have limited, at best, reading abilities.

"This was a really fun project all the way around for the students," said Susan Groth, the instructor. "We had to really try to think what these games would be like for 3 to 5-year-olds."

Sophomore Anthony Baruffi added, "This was a cool project. We had familiarity with Power Point (the program used to create the games) from taking Business Tech Lab I and creating slide shows. With this, we could make it as fun as we wanted."

The games took about two weeks to create with the point being to better familiarize the students with the program. Senior Beck Geyer said, "This really forces you to get to know the program."

The class is burning CDs for the preschoolers to bring home with them.

Annual town meeting typically quiet

By JULIE MURPHY
Staff Reporter

Antioch Township has scheduled its annual town meeting for Tuesday, April 8 at 7:30 p.m. at the township offices located on Deep Lake Road.

Kathleen Smith, township clerk, said, "As far as we know, there are no issues coming up. The longest part of the meeting is usually me reading the reports."

Supervisor Steve Smouse said he has a budget report, but that the township hasn't asked for more than a 4.99 percent increase in the four years he's been supervisor, or the two years prior when he was a trustee. "We're in budget," he said. "We have been for years."

Heather Kufalk-Marotta, township assessor, asked to be on the agenda as her office has some old computer equipment it wants to donate to Antioch Community High School. "I have to do it as surplus or throw it in the garbage, and I'd hate to do that," she said.

Kufalk-Marotta said the worn-out laser printer would go the high school's tech center so the students can see if they can fix it.

"It's just pretty quiet around here," she added.

Record high absentee voter requests

By JULIE MURPHY
Staff Reporter

Antioch Township Clerk Kathleen Smith said there are a record-high number of absentee ballots being cast for this election.

"This is the most absentee voting I've seen in the 18 years I've been here," she said. "There are over 300 absentee ballots that have been cast."

Smith said the numbers are likely so high because this election falls over spring break and all three Antioch elementary districts have Educational Fund referenda on the ballots.

"One way or another, people must really care about this," she added.

IDNR purchase expands slough

By JULIE MURPHY
Staff Reporter

Real estate finesse and mediation by CorLands Corporation for Openlands made it possible for the Illinois Department of Natural Resources (IDNR) to purchase 110 acres of property adjacent to the Red Wing Slough. The property is located east of Deep Lake Road and south of North Ave. in unincorporated Antioch.

Before IDNR takes possession of the entire parcel, Land and Water Resources, Inc., a private company that maintains a "wetland bank" will take charge of a 47-acre portion until it is able to sell the "wetland credits" to developers. Once the wetland restoration is established, IDNR will have full ownership.

"A wetland bank and wetland credits are used to offset what developers destroy as they mitigate small wetlands for their projects," said Jeff Greenspan, director of land acquisition for CorLands. "Developers pay for the establishment of wetlands in the same watershed."

Greenspan added that the property is currently being farmed, but that wetlands will be established on the property. He said the drain tiles have to be broken out to determine where the ground hydrates and then native, natural wetland plants are introduced.

"I would imagine it takes a couple of seasons to get this done," he said.

The property was purchased from Melvin Landau who said he "wanted future generations to enjoy the property as my family and I did."

Greenspan brought the interests of Landau and IDNR together.

In addition to the 110 acres adjacent to the Red Wing Slough, IDNR bought acreage in Boone County in the Coon Creek watershed, a tributary of the Kishwaukee River, from Landau.

"This isn't the first time CorLands has helped in the area of Red Wing Slough," said Greenspan, who noted the company contributed money in previous property acquisition in the area.

Additionally, a CorLands wetland grant is helping to maximize the habitat at Red Wing Slough for state-listed endangered bird species and other waterfowl by funding measures to monitor conditions that ensure the sensitive habitat is preserved.

CorLands, an affiliate of Openlands Project, has helped save almost 10,000 acres of parks and open space in Illinois.

Residents rallying to support our troops

Used opinions of a photo poll taken are too good to discard.

When asked if it is unpatriotic to protest the war, resident Shawn Hinrichs said, "I don't think it's unpatriotic. As Americans we have a right to voice our opinions. However, I don't think that most people who are protesting are not supportive of the troops. I think they just wish the troops didn't have to be there."

Stopped on the way to the skate park and asked the same question; Steven Hays said, "To protest the war doesn't show support. I think we should support the troops and the president."

OUR TOWN

Solution Seekers is collecting reading materials, games, toiletries, snacks, sunglasses, baseball hats, and gloves for our military men and women overseas. All items will be delivered to Rep. JoAnn Osmond (R-Antioch) for distribution.

Working with the American Red Cross and the United Service Organization, Osmond has made her district office a drop off location for area residents wishing to send either goods or letters to service men and women overseas.

The decision was made after the Department of Defense banned the practice of "any service member" deliveries. According to Osmond, this had been a key component of citizen and USO support efforts in the past.

Suggested items include: reading materials, from paperbacks and magazines to comic books or the funny sections of newspapers; small board games, card and trivia games; toiletries, though not spray deodorants; snacks, with exception of chocolate that melts; or monetary donations to either the Red Cross or the USO.

Camp, swim sign ups set

By JULIE MURPHY
Staff Reporter

Registration dates for both summer day camp and swim lessons through the Antioch parks and recreation department have been set.

"We want to let people know that these registration dates are upcoming," said Laurie Stahl, director. "These are always in high demand."

Summer Day Camp registration will take place on Saturday, April 19 from 9-11 a.m. for village residents and on Monday, April 21 at 9 a.m. for township residents if space permits. Registration will be held in the parks department building, 806 Holbek Drive.

The camp runs weekdays from 7 a.m.-6 p.m. from June 9 to August 15. The cost per child is $23 per day, of $105 per week.

Swim lesson registration will be held in the Camp Crayon room of the parks department building on Saturday, May 17 from 9-11 a.m.

Stahl said, "Because of the great demand for swimming lessons, and to expedite the wait in line this year, each family will be allowed to sign up for only one session on May 17. There will be a separate line for each session."

Open registration, including non-residents, will begin on Tuesday, May 27 at 9 a.m. in the parks department office. Registration for additional sessions will be held at this time if there are openings still available.

"It's helpful to fill out the registration form ahead of time," said Stahl. "Forms can be found in the program guide, or they can be picked up from the parks office."

Shakespeare: Romeo and Juliet

In the heart of the beautiful Navy Pier in Chicago is a Shakespearean style theater. Here, Shakespeare's work comes to life. This trip (for seniors) is to see a shortened version of one of his most famous works, "Romeo and Juliet." The city of Verona is falling apart under deep-seated rivalries and family feuds. Here love is found and lost. After the play, we'll have lunch at the lovely Riva Restaurant overlooking Lake Michigan. Included in the play ticket is a 20% off coupon for lunch. Saturday, April 12, 9:30 a.m.-3 p.m. The cost is $27-R, $30-NR. For more information, call the Lindenhurst Park District at 847-356-6011.

Spring/Easter Luncheon for seniors

We had so much fun at our Halloween and Christmas parties that we're going to have a Spring/Easter luncheon on Monday, April 14, starting at noon at the Lindenhurst Park District Senior Room.

We'll have a catered lunch of baked ham, chicken breast, salad, rolls, mashed potatoes and gravy, vegetables, and an éclair. This is a great time to spend the afternoon with friends both old and new. Bring a friend if you like. We'll play games and have some short entertainment. The cost is $6-R, $7-NR.

Teacher selected for China Field Study tour

Chris Bryant, a sixth-grade social studies teacher at the Antioch Upper Grade School, has been invited to participate in the China Field Study Tour of 2003. Mr. Bryant attended a workshop on China at Yale University last summer. This program is part of the Center on International Studies.

Bryant was one of the 12 teachers selected from all around the United States to take part in a China tour this summer. This month-long tour is entitled "The Backroad of China." Bryant will travel to Southwest China near Burma and Viet Nam. Two years ago, Mr. Bryant went on a circular trip to eastern China, Beijing, northwest China, Xinjiang, Tibet, and the Republic of Mongolia. Chris Bryant has been teaching at Antioch Upper Grade School for 15 years. His wife Anna is a fifth-grade teacher at W.C. Petty.

Penny Wars at Upper Grade School

During the week of March 17, Antioch Upper Grade School students participated in Penny Wars, collections of pennies, silver, and dollars. Students competed with other homerooms trying to get the most pennies or the most silver. At the end of the week, the homeroom with the most pennies had the privilege of throwing pies at the homeroom with the most silver.

This year, Mrs. Grosenbach's homeroom (7 Gold) threw pies at Mr. Godsey's homeroom (8 Green) at the Spring Assembly on Friday, March 28th. Over $1,350 was raised! The money will be distributed to the Children's Hospital in Milwaukee and other nearby organizations.

Mystery Festival at Oakland

Students at Oakland Elementary School had an opportunity to become detectives and forensic scientists. A "Mystery Festival" was held on March 19 for the students and their families. Each family had to complete a battery of forensic tests to solve "The Case of the Missing Millionaire."

The evening included special presentations from the Antioch Police Department and "Dare 2 Care 4 Kids." Funding for this event was made possible by Abbott Laboratories. Many teachers assisted at the lab stations playing the roles of suspects and investigating officers. "Kenya Goode," played by school Principal, Ms. Stoneberg, was chosen by the majority of detectives as the guilty suspect.

A big "THANK YOU" goes out to the families, the staff, and all the people that helped to make this night a success!

Wetland friends plan work meetings, seminars

By JULIE MURPHY
Staff Reporter

With spring upon us, the Antioch Friends of the Wetlands is busy scheduling planning and work meetings as well as seminars.

"We've really grown," said Billie Horton, who is both Antioch's special events coordinator and head of this committee. "In January we only had five members, and now we're up to 17."

The next scheduled meeting is April 26, a week later than the typical third Saturday of the month, and will be used as a planning session for the following week.

"On May 3, we have a clean up planned with JAM (Jesus and Me)," she said. "They've been helping us with the William E. Brook Memorial Wetland for the past few years. We want to make sure we have things organized with a Friends member working with and overseeing members of the youth group."

Other work on the horizon includes member Fred Gaca, who writes grants professionally, looking into grants that the Friends of the Wetlands may be eligible to receive to support the work it's doing. "It would be wonderful if we could get some grant money to help keep us going," said Horton.

Additionally, John Larson, PhD, will be giving a seminar on June 7 at 10 a.m. about wetland care and maintenance.

Horton added, "We're really looking forward to that. He was so helpful when we first started out. We've been lucky to have professionals with guidelines of what can and cannot be done."

With the exception of April, Friends of the Wetlands meets the third Saturday of the month at 9 a.m. in the community building just south of Village Hall on Main St. Anyone interested in attending is welcome to do so.

Parks program guides available

Spring and summer program guides are available at the parks department office, 806 Holbek, as well as the Chamber of Commerce, 882 Main Street, and the Public Library, 757 N. Main Street.

New and returning programs are featured for this spring.

Among them, is a new series of music teaching programs taught by Lake County Music, in Lindenhurst.

Class listings include Kids on Keys, a keyboard class for ages 4-7 years old, Introduction to Violin for 4- and 5-year-olds as well as guitar and drum instruction for 7- to 10-year-olds. Classes will be held at Lake County Music, 2058 E. Grand Ave. in early April and May.

Parents can have their children "street-proofed" in a self-defense course called Self-Defense for Non-Martial Artists and taught by Best Defense of Illinois. The program is designed to build self-esteem and self-confidence by providing kids with information about how to be aware of danger, how to avoid danger and how to implement a course of action in the event of a physical assault.

The course runs three weeks for children 5 years old and older on Wednesdays beginning on June 11, 1:30-3 p.m. It will be taught at the parks department building by a certified instructor.

Promising Picassos begin on April 17 beginning at 4:30 p.m., depending on age for the younger ones. A themed class will be held that day for those 6-13 years old on Outback Down Under. Summer classes begin June 26.

Linda Zeman brings back Kids in the Kitchen starting on April 19 with party pancakes for 6 to 12-year-olds.

Dance, gymnastics, horseback riding, pilates, yoga and aqua-size classes are also available through the parks department. For more information, call 847-395-2160.

Prevention month actively observed

By PJ BEEMER
Lakeland Correspondent

On April 7, the Exchange Club Foundation for the Prevention of Child Abuse of Lake County will be launching a community public awareness campaign in observance of Child Abuse Prevention Month.

To take place throughout April, this campaign includes partnering with local businesses, schools and civic centers to host a T-shirt display. Each child-sized T-shirt will display a message or child abuse/neglect statistic as well as giving information about where to call for help or to report suspected abuse.

A kick-off event will be hosted by Warren Township Supervisor Suzanne Simpson at the Warren Township Youth Services Building located at 17801 W. Washington St., Gurnee.

The campaign, largely underwritten by the Exchange Club Foundation and Warren Township Youth Services, is being undertaken in collaboration with the Lake County Health Department, Boys and Girls Clubs of Lake County, Prevent Child Abuse Illinois, Catholic Charities, the Children's Advocacy Center, Family Service Agency of North Lake County, Central Baptist Family Services, St. Therese Medical Center, Community Care, LaCasa and the Lake County Convention & Visitors Bureau.

The event will begin at 9:30 a.m. For more information contact Adam Krieger at 847-244-1105.

In the blood

Many of us remember the Warren Blue Devils' runner-up finish in the 1999 Boys Class AA State basketball tournament.

There were so many key ingredients on Head Coach Chuck Ramsey's squad. One was Mike Brandow, known for his tenacity, especially on defense. The rest of the team seemed to follow his lead. He also packed a pretty mean punch on offense. That was high school ball. The only combat took place on the court. It was harmless, most of the time.

But now, Brandow is exercising that tenacity at the highest level possible. And the combat is a little more serious this time around. After the 9-11 attacks, Brandow, now 21, enlisted in the Marines.

"It was overwhelming at first, just to hear that your kid just joined (the service)," said Mike's mom, Marge. "It's hard knowing that people are dying over there (in Iraq) every day. But Mike's very strong and dedicated. He's always been a fighter and had that never-back-down attitude. Knowing that, makes it a little easier to accept. We're behind him 100 percent."

Mike is a mortarman for a weapons company in the Marine's 1st Division.

"In his platoon, they typically have 7-9 guns," said Mike's father, Tom. "They're right in the middle of the action. They fire 81-millimeter guns that have up to a 5-mile range. Mike's the center gun, which is usually the fastest and most accurate. He fires the first shot, and everyone else basically follows his lead on whatever the target is."

Ironically, Mike has the chance of reuniting with former schoolmate and Warren football team member Eric Nelson, a member of the Army Reserves. Instead deployment, Eric volunteered for assignment to Iraq. He is specializing in chemical and biological agents.

"We just talked to Eric a few days ago," said Marge Brandow. "He and Mike have been close friends since they were little. I guess Eric's group is attached in some way to Mike's Marine group. Hopefully, they will bump in each other."

Marge Brandow and her husband feel better knowing what's going on over in Iraq, thanks to the media and internet.

"The San Francisco Chronicle has a reporter embedded in Mike's platoon," said Marge. "We check the Chronicle's web site for updated stories and diary entries on how the guys are doing. They have them on the web site every couple of days."

Marge said the support of friends and family members has been tremendous.

"The phone rings, people stop by—it's been incredible," she said. "A lot of people we haven't seen since the basketball days have been in contact with us. We get together with many of our friends every week to pray, to talk. We thank all of them very much."

One of them is Ramsey.

"Mike knew when he signed up that it could come to something like this," the coach said. "He went in at a very volatile time. But it was what he wanted. We really admire him for what he is doing. He's one of those guys you want out there protecting the country because you know he'll do a good job."

"His tenacity, I think, was instilled in him during the basketball days at Warren," added Tom Brandow. "He'll be fine. He's got the heart. And you definitely need that to do what he, and Eric, for that matter, are doing."

If the results are anything close to what they were on the hardwood, Brandow and Nelson will take care of the business at hand before returning to where they really belong: home.

2003 Lakeland Media Boys Basketball All-Star Team

PLAYER OF THE YEAR

Andrew Wynne
Sr., Grant

The 6-foot, 6-inch senior center did it all for the Bulldogs. Andrew joined former great Lee Oler, who played in the late-1960's, as only the second player in Grant history to score over 1,000 points (1,182) and grab over 500 rebounds (543). Named All-North Suburban and IBCA All-State, Wynne and the Bulldogs finished 18-8 and co-champs of the NSC Prairie Division at 9-1. For the season, averaged 16.3 points, 7.5 boards, 3.5 assists and close to two steals per game.

CO-COACHES OF THE YEAR

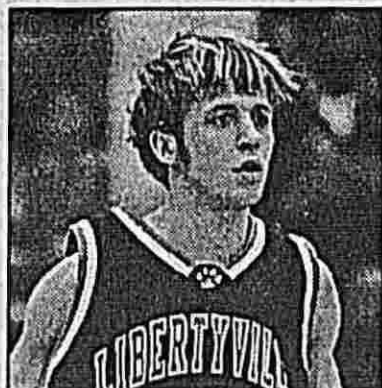

Jim Goodwin
Libertyville

Phil Ralston
Grant

It's probably fair to say both Libertyville and Grant exceeded expectations this season. Both coaches utilized their bench well while getting the most out of the starting five. For Goodwin, the Cats lost three key starters from the last year's North Suburban champs that finished 21-6. This year, they responded to Goodwin's up-tempo style of play and pushing the ball up-court, helping them to a 23-6 mark, second place finish in the NSC and berth in the sectional title game for the first time in nine years. For Ralston, the Bulldogs showed last year's school-record 20 wins was no fluke. With only two starters back, the Dogs won the Marengo Christmas tournament, shared the NSC Prairie Division title with super-sectional qualifier Zion-Benton and finished with an 18-8 overall record.

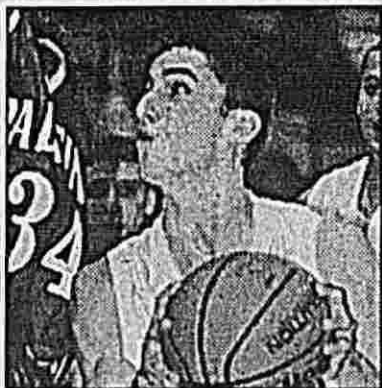

DEFENSIVE PLAYER OF THE YEAR

Austin Yarc
Sr., Libertyville

Better be careful or this 5-foot, 10-inch senior guard will pick your pocket. Yarc, in addition to having a silky-smooth jump shot and ability to drive strong to the basket, put the defensive clamps on many of the best guards the area had to offer, averaging two steals and numerous forced passes and turnover by the opposition as the Cats finished 23-6. When he wasn't busy stealing the ball or frustrating you defensively, Yarc's intensity and play-making on both sides of the ball raised his teammates play to another level.

ROOKIE OF THE YEAR

Casey Pond
Jr., Warren

Warren fans have plenty to be excited about with the return of 6-foot, 1-inch junior guard Casey Pond. When teams collapsed on big men Ryan Murphy and Scott Shaw, Pond was usually found knifing through the lane for a lay-up or pulling up for a soft, short jumper. In 26 games, he contributed 10 points, 4 rebounds and close to 4 assists for the 17-9 Devils. He also shot 50 percent from the field and 74 percent from the foul line while ranking second on the team with his 37 steals.

Oh baby, baby, baby, baby!

Local family expecting four times what they were expecting

Ultrasound photos of the quadruplets Jerry and Tracy Larson of Grayslake are expecting in May. — Photo by Sandy Bressner

By ELIZABETH GUARD
Staff Reporter

Jerry and Tracy Larson accomplished their quest to give 21-month-old Noah, their first and only child, a little brother or sister—times four. The Larson family of Grayslake is expecting quadruplets in May. Having quads is rare enough as there are only about 500 sets of them born in the United States each year. But Jerry and Tracy find themselves in an even more unique situation than other parents of quads. About 90 percent of quadruplets born in the world are due to reproductive technology or fertility drugs such as in vitro fertilization. But Tracy, who will be 36 this month, wasn't on any type of fertility drugs. What are the odds of having naturally conceived or "spontaneous" quadruplets? ... About one in 729,000.

When Jerry and Tracy went for their first ultrasound at 20 weeks into the pregnancy, they got quite a bombshell dropped on them. With no history of multiple births in either Jerry's or Tracy's families, the couple could hardly believe it when they were told about the quads.

"I was scared," Tracy said. "I started thinking what are we going to do? How are we going to afford this? I felt guilty because I wasn't really happy about it at first."

Jerry too said he was concerned when they heard the news.

"I was worried because she was so upset," Jerry said. "You feel like you're on a roller coaster because you feel bad asking 'Do I want this?'"

But both Jerry and Tracy agree that "this is happening for a reason." Neither is over the initial shock of the news yet, and they don't know when they will be.

"I don't think it will really sink in until they get here," Tracy said.

Now father of one and future father of five added he doesn't know when the reality of having four newborn babies at the same time will strike.

"You don't know what to think because what can you compare it to?" Jerry asked. "We're just going to have babies ... I don't know when it will hit me."

When she first got pregnant, Tracy thought she would be due in June because she never expected to have more than one baby. But with quadruplets, the gestation time, or time Tracy will carry the babies, is reduced from 40 to about 30 weeks. The reduction in gestation time is because with multiple births, there are also multiple placentas. In Tracy's case, she has four separate placentas—one to nourish each baby. Jerry explained that doctors determine when the babies are ready to come out by when the placentas can no longer take care of the babies. Any pregnancy in which a woman carries more than two babies is considered high risk. But Tracy has been doing wonderfully according to Jerry and her doctor. Right now, Tracy actually weighs 35 pounds less than she did when she delivered Noah. Tracy said she hasn't had the ankle swelling and soreness she had with her first pregnancy. She said her doctor told her this pregnancy would probably be harder on her body than the first because she is carrying more. But Tracy said she feels now how she did at the end of her first pregnancy.

"She's doing fine," Jerry said. "They (the doctors) are amazed that she can even get out of bed at this point and walk around."

Jerry said he thinks Tracy's body can handle the quads better than other mothers carrying quadruplets because theirs were naturally conceived.

"This wasn't induced in your body," he told Tracy. "This was just something your body did. It happened naturally so your body can handle it better than someone's who was forced into it."

But even though her pregnancy is going better than expected, Tracy will be on strict bed rest at Northwestern Hospital in Evanston starting next week until she is ready to deliver. In all, Tracy, who just finished her 26th week of pregnancy, will probably spend about a month in the hospital.

Mothers expecting quadruplets are usually put in the hospital and ordered bed rest at 24 weeks. But Tracy, who has been a stay-at-home mom since conceiving Noah, pushed her doctor to let her stay home a little longer so she could find someone to take care of her son while she was gone. Tracy said the hardest part of her pregnancy so far has been that she will be away from her son.

"I haven't left my son since he was born," Tracy said. "And I had to make sure he would be taken care of."

To help the Larson family

Lakeland Media will serve as a drop-off point for donations to be given to the Larson family of Grayslake, who are expecting quadruplets in May. The Larsons, who already have a 21-month-old son, will be in need of many essentials for the new additions to their family. New or used items such as clothing, bedding, furniture, travel gear, activity centers, bath and 'potty' items, feeding items, health and safety items and toys are welcome. Donations of baby or toddler food, diapers, baby wipes or gift certificates will be accepted as well. The Larsons, although very independent people, admit they will be overwhelmed by caring for five children under the age of 2. They ask that any baby-related items people don't need anymore or are going to get rid of anyway, be donated to them to help them out with the situation they are facing. Items can be dropped off at Lakeland Media, 30 S. Whitney St., in downtown Grayslake.

put an ad in local newspapers to find a live-in nanny. The process was slow going, they said, with so many applicants saying 'no thanks' once they found out about the quads. But Adriana, who started as the Larsons live-in nanny last week, wanted to take on the challenge.

"The first time I spoke to Tracy I sensed something special, but I didn't know why or what it was," Adriana said.

Jerry said Tracy told him the same thing about Adriana after speaking to her.

"Tracy said 'I think this is the one,'" Jerry said. "She just knew right away after talking to her (Adriana) that she was the one who was going to take care of our son and the babies."

Adriana will be taking care of Noah while Tracy is in the hospital waiting to deliver her quads. Adriana will also stay on and work side by side with Tracy in raising the four additions to the Larson family. Adriana said she is anxiously anticipating the day the quads come home.

According to the first three ultrasounds Tracy has had, the babies are expected to be four girls, which means they could be identical. But the chances of that happening are about one in 11 million. Jerry and Tracy have already picked out four girls' names even though they aren't certain if they will all be girls.

"But three different people saw four girls, so there's a good chance they will be," Jerry said.

The Larsons decided on Hannah, Abigail, Zoe and Ella, spelling out the acronym HAZE. Although Tracy and Jerry came up with the names, Jerry's boss thought up the joke because Jerry has been in a haze since learning he would soon go from being a father of one to a father of five just like that.

Tracy admits that sometimes her mind gets going and she can't stop it.

"It's hard to begin to think of all the mass quantities of diapers and formula and how I'm going to feed all these babies at once," Tracy said. "Can you imagine when they get to be teenagers and they all get their periods ... and then the boyfriends and the cars."

Tracy said when her thoughts start getting the best of her she has to stop herself.

"I just start thinking about everything and I have to tell myself 'stop,'" Tracy said. "You can't think about everything like that because you can't deal with it all at once anyway."

Jerry added that they "just try to bite off little bits at a time and take it from there."

"That's the only way you can do it, otherwise I'd never sleep at night," Tracy said.

Right now, Jerry and Tracy said their first priority is making sure all the babies come home safe and healthy.

"You almost have to accept the fact that there is a possibility that not all of them could come home," Tracy said.

"You live doctor visit to doctor visit," Jerry added. "People make jokes about how are you going to pay for college and stuff like that, and it's like that doesn't even exist at this point until we can get them all home safely."

But Jerry and Tracy's quads seem to be growing and developing healthily. All of the children are about the same size within a few grams, which is also a rarity. In most multiple birth cases, the sizes of the babies vary with one or two being much larger than the others. This difference in size is what causes the danger of losing one of the babies in a multiple birth. The smaller babies can be deprived of nutrients, not develop fully and may not survive. But in Tracy's case, all the babies are almost exactly the same size and all a healthy weight.

According to the U.S. Department of Agriculture, the average cost of a baby from birth to age 18 is about $160,000 for a middle-income family. With one child who won't even be 2 years old when the quads are born, the Larsons can expect to spend nearly $1 million over the next 18 years. And that doesn't include extracurricular activities or college tuition, which can cost as much as $150,000 per child. The Larsons are looking at a monthly diaper bill (diapers ALONE) of about $400. Formula to feed the quads will cost as much as $500 per month. And this is just the beginning. The Larsons will need cribs, car seats, changing tables, playpens, baby wipes, bottles, clothes, baby wipes, high chairs and the list goes on and on. Tracy joked saying that they just bought a new minivan thinking "we'd be set." Now, they will have to pack in five car seats.

"Once you get all of them in there with all their stuff, there wouldn't be room for anything else," Tracy said.

So they could have that expense in front of them as well. The Larsons live in a three-bedroom house, but said they aren't planning to move anytime soon because of the quads.

"They'll just have to share," Tracy said.

"And from what I've heard, they don't mind that because they're all together anyway."

But luckily, Jerry and Tracy have some help coming their way with the mountain of expenses they are facing. Tracy has been a member of the MOMS Club, a national support group for mothers with children of toddler age since Noah's first year. Already, Tracy and Jerry have received three cribs, baby clothes and other baby items from members of the MOMS Club, friends and strangers who just want to lend a hand.

Both Tracy, who worked as a police officer for Highland Park for seven years, and Jerry, who worked as an officer for the same department for 18 years, said it's nice to see there are people who care.

"It's so touching to think there are people that I've never even met who want to help us," Tracy said. "Being with the police you see so much negative and you don't think much of people because of all the bad things you see. Even once you're out of that profession it sticks with you. It's good to have a little bit of your faith in people restored because it was destroyed."

"It (police work) beats up your humanity," Jerry said. "It is nice to see people doing good things again."

Mary Jaffe, a member of the MOMS Club, is organizing several drop-off days for people interested in helping out the Larsons.

Mary and the Larsons are asking that anyone with baby-related items that are no longer of use to them be donated to the Larson family to help out.

Although Jerry and Tracy define themselves as "very independent," they admit they will need the help once the babies come.

"It is hard to accept help, but we'll be overwhelmed," Tracy said. "Anything you don't need anymore we would appreciate. Anything would be wonderful."

Mary and other members of the MOMS Club are helping support the Larsons by passing fliers around town, organizing a helping hands committee, of which members will go the Larson's home and help out with meals, laundry and anything else that needs to be done.

Mary said Tracy is a wonderful person who is always helping out other members of the MOMS Club.

"She has always helped everyone else out, so now it's our turn to help her out," Mary said.

Anyone who can help the Larson family can contact the MOMS Club by visiting www.geocities.com/grayslakemoms/.

ART EXHIBIT

Local artist at Round Lake Library

Award winning artist Catherine Ladner's paintings are being exhibited at the Round Lake Library now through April 30. Ms. Ladner has been recognized as the Tole Painting Champion for the past two years at the Lake County Fair for her whimsical style. Her work, along with her students, has also been exhibited at the Lake County Discovery Museum in Wauconda. For this show, Ms. Ladner has elected to use acrylics to display examples of her numerous portraits, plus paintings of Lake County homes and businesses.

'The Elves and Shoemaker'

The Kirk Players will present "The Elves and the Shoemaker" at the Mundelein High School Auditorium at the corner of Midlothian and Hawley in Mundelein.

The group's 11th annual children's show will be presented at 7 p.m. on April 11, 2 p.m. and 7 p.m., on April 12, and 2 p.m. on April 13.

The play, written by Karen Boettcher-Tate is full of the wonder and whimsy of a fantastical fairy tale. Set in the country of Woosle and the city of Clankbottom, it's a tale about a poor, kindhearted shoemaker and an old, beggar woman all rolled up with magical shoes and elves. Music with elfish lyrics and playful antics will keep the entire family entertained.

More information about the show is available on the Kirk player's website, www.geocities.com/kirkplayers or by calling Paddy Lynn at 847-566-6391. Tickets priced at $9 for adults, $7 for seniors and students, and $5 for children 12 and under.

Car rally breaks a new record for cancer research

By MARC JENKINS
Community Editor

A car rally started 25 years ago to raise funds for cancer research has raised $458,654.81 since its inception.

A check for $57,651.81, a new record, was turned over to the American Cancer Society Wisconsin Division, proceeds from an event last fall that drew 800 vehicles to Lake Geneva, Wis., as part of the Corinne Kreissel Memorial Foundation Class Car Rally.

Interlaken Resort on September 27 and 28 will again host this year's 26th anniversary event. The weekend kicks off with a "Taste of the Car Rally" party on Friday evening, September 26, at Samantha Richardson's home "Vagabond" on the South Shore of Lake Geneva. A car show on Saturday morning by the lakefront in Lake

Geneva is planned before the dealing around the lake begins.

On Saturday evening, for the sixth year, the Riviera Ballroom in downtown Lake Geneva at the lake will be the site of the Hubcap-Runningboard USO Dance featuring the Airmen of Swing Orchestra. This band from Milwaukee will bring back the sounds that the Riviera was originally meant for.

On Sunday, as Rally participants complete their around the lake tour, a car show will be staged on Interlaken grounds on Lake Como. Weather permitting, a fly-over by antique aircraft and Warbirds from the World War II era will take place at noon before the awards program and finale at 2:30 p.m. at the Chalet.

For additional information about the 2003 Car Rally events call 262-248-2764 or visit the web site at www.classicarrally.net

Food-and-wine writer James Villas showcases the versatility of what he calls "one of America's greatest contributions to world gastronomy" in his new book, "Crazy for Casseroles" (Harvard Common Press, 2003).

Villas takes a cooking style that by the 1970s briefly fell into disrepute thanks to an over-reliance on "convenience" ingredients, from bouillon cubes to processed cheese to garlic powder. He preserves old favorites from the past such as chicken tetrazzini and scalloped potatoes.

Among his 275 recipes, many rely on ethnic sausages, interesting herbs and spices and new varieties of beans and wild mushrooms. The one for "Crusted Chicken and Black Beans" was inspired by celebrated American chef, Jeremiah Tower.

Crusted Chicken and Black Beans

3 Tbl. corn oil
One 3-lb. chicken, cut into serving pieces
1 large onion, chopped
1 medium-size green bell pepper, seeded and chopped
1 jalapeño, seeded and finely chopped
1 garlic clove, minced
2 tsp. ground cumin
Salt and black pepper to taste
1 Tbl. fresh lime juice
1 large ripe tomato, peeled and chopped (juices included)
One 15-1/4 oz. can black beans, drained
2 cups chicken broth
1/2 cup bread crumbs

Preparation

Preheat the oven to 350 degrees F. Grease a 2 1/2 quart casserole and set aside.

In a large heavy skillet, heat the oil over moderate heat, brown the chicken pieces on all sides and arrange in the prepared casserole.

Add the onion, bell pepper, jalapeño, garlic and cumin to the skillet, season with salt and pepper and stir until the vegetables are softened, about 5 minutes. Add the lime juice and tomato plus its juices, stir for 5 minutes and scrape evenly over the chicken. Layer the beans over the top, add the broth, sprinkle the bread crumbs evenly over the top, cover and bake for 30 minutes.

Uncover and bake until the chicken is very tender and the beans are crusty, about 30 minutes. (Makes six servings)

ADVANCED RADIATION THERAPY TECHNOLOGY.

Radiation Oncologists
Joseph Imperato, MD and Marc Posner, MD

Lake Forest Hospital is the only full-service hospital in Lake County that offers Intensity Modulated Radiation Therapy. IMRT doesn't simply deliver radiation therapy to the general area of a cancer; IMRT sculpts the dose to conform to the unique shape of the carefully mapped tumor. IMRT maximizes the impact of therapy while diminishing its effect on adjacent healthy tissues and organs, for fewer side effects and faster recovery.

If your doctor is recommending radiation therapy, you may want to ask about IMRT. More focused. Fewer side effects. And there's just one hospital in Lake County where you can get it. Call us today at (847) 535-6135 to learn more or arrange for a consultation.

Campy humor marks Mystery of Irma Vep'

CRITIC'S CHOICE
by Tom Witom

Tom Aulino and Jamie Baron in a scene from Northlight Theatre's "The Mystery of Irma Vep."

The Mystery of Irma Vep, a 1984 farce by the late Charles Ludlam, who founded the Ridiculous Theater Company in 1967, is enjoying a lively revival by Northlight Theatre at the North Shore Center for the Performing Arts in Skokie.

It's a work not easily defined. Ludlam himself described "Irma Vep" as "a surrealist-mystery-melodrama-adventure story" and is said to have borrowed liberally in its creation from the Gothic novel, penny dreadfuls (the British counterpart to American dime novels of the late 1800s) and horror films from the 1920s and 1930s.

In addition, the playwright throws in a bit of Henrik Ibsen's psychological dementia, William Shakespeare's poetry and Edgar Allen Poe's take on spirits that go bump in the night.

Lord Edgar welcomes his new bride, Lady Enid, to Mandercrest, the ancestral home in a desolate, windswept corner of England, where she encounters a less-than-enamored housekeeper, a werewolf, a vampire and a deceased first wife. Act II finds Lord Edgar on a mission in Cairo where he brings to life a mummy.

"Irma Vep" is just plain zany, especially since all the characters are played at full throttle by just two actors: Tom Aulino and Jamie Baron.

Quick-change artists, these high-energy performers seamlessly shift persona as they speak with different accents, adopt unique mannerisms and make multiple costume changes.

Audience members do best not trying to make much sense of the silly plot. On the subject, Ludlam once wrote: "If you're going to paddle your boat against the stream, nothing can happen to you. If you get into the current, it carries you along. You benefit from all the discoveries of all the artists before you, and you take your boat much farther along the stream."

"The Mystery of Irma Vep" may not tickle everyone's funny bone in the same way, but there's no denying the craftsmanship behind its campy humor. The play runs through April 27 at 9501 Skokie Blvd., Skokie. Ticket information is available at 847-673-6300.

What a Girl Wants

Rating

For mild language)

Director
Dennie Gordon

Starring
Amanda Bynes, Colin Firth
Kelly Preston, Oliver James

Daphne Reynolds (Amanda Bynes) is 17 and lives with her single mother Libby (Kelly Preston) in NYC in an apartment over a restaurant in China town. She has never met her father, Lord

Henry Dashwood (Colin Firth). He and Libby were once "married," but her hippie ways did not fit into his aristocratic English family; and she was manipulated out of his life. Libby never told Henry that she was pregnant with his child, and she has never found another true love in her life. To make a living, Libby sings at weddings while Daphne works as a waitress. Daphne's dream of her lifetime is to dance with her father, like she sees at the weddings. Libby's lonely look, hopefully, one day will be replaced with the love she had 17 years ago.

Daphne is a free spirit who decides to grab her passport and take off to London to meet her father. While staying at a hotel with a fancy name, which is anything but posh, she meets Ian (Oliver James). He plays the same type of guitar as a musician in Libby's band, and that common bond allows them to strike up a friendship.

Daphne sneaks into her father's estate and breaks the news that she's the daughter he never knew. Of course, she does this in front of his mother, his political handler, and his fiancé and intended step daughter. A few cameo appearances by Prince Charles, combined with the knowledge of the British Press and the paparazzi, give this fantasy a sense of reality.

This fairy tale is good wholesome fun, along the lines of "Princess Diaries." There are enough issues regarding teen/parent relationships and sexual innuendo that preteen and teenage girls will enjoy the film. Most parents will be relieved that everything is not made on the same intellectual or moral level as a Britney Spears soft drink commercial or her movie "Crossroads." "What A Girl Wants" is enough fun to almost make you want to be a teenager again...almost.

A Talk with...Oliver James
By George O. Singleton

Oliver James was selected for his debut role in "What a Girl Wants" after the casting director saw his picture in one of those head shot books, full of acting and modeling hopefuls. On this page is a review of the movie.

The big standout in the film is the music in general and Oliver's performance in particular. He sings songs by Frank Sinatra and Louis Armstrong. To cover James Brown, he does a rousing rendition of "Get Up Offa That Thang." You've got to have self-confidence, talent and nerve to sing a JB song. Oliver describes his ability to cover this range of songs by saying modestly, "I've always had a fairly versatile voice."

More than just a funny fluff piece, "What a Girl Wants" has "...a lot [to say] of modern culture," says Oliver. He thinks there are important messages, such as "You can't please everybody all the time." It's a real delight to see a young man with an old soul.

Language and some violence

Director
Robert Duvall

Starring
Robert Duvall, Luciana Pedraza

To his friends and loved ones, John (Robert Duvall) leads the life of a man who gets by doing a little of this and a little of that. In reality he is a highly skilled assassin for hire.

John is romantically involved and in love with Maggie (Kathy Baker), and he is enchanted with her young daughter in an infatuated, fatherly way.

A family in Buenos Aires, who was the victim of a retired General's ruthlessness, wants revenge; and they hire John to assassinate him. Things are going smoothly, until the General's return to the city is delayed. To pass the time, John uses his love of dance to learn about the tango. To John, sexy tango dance instructor Manuela (Luciana Pedraza) is a potential lover. To Manuela, he is an interesting student, an older man from the States of North America.

John senses that there is something going on which might ensnare him. He completes the job, however, and when the military clamps down, dragnet style, the only way for him to escape and make it back to NYC, is to find a way to pull an Osama Bin Laden disappearing act.

A romantic story, entwined with an assassin who loves the passion of the tango, provides a film that is enjoyable, and shows us that some movies can be both fun to watch and even better to think about after leaving the theater.

HAVE A GREAT TIME IN VEGAS!!

A tongue-in-cheek peek at 'shabby chi'

I'm one of those select few on "preferred customer" mailing lists with all the better retailers. (You know, the ones where the closest thing to a valet is wearing a neon orange vest and pushing a grocery cart at you.) So I couldn't resist a home decorator's hand engraved invitation declaring that even I, threadbare house-dress and all, was considered elegantly stylish. YES! I'd made the grade! "Shabby Chic" was IN, and this establishment had the best goods reserved for "discerning customers" like me.

Invitation in hand, I wandered the back alleys of an industrial park for a good half hour before I started wondering if these goods just might not only be trendy, but "hot." Then I ran smack dab into a battalion of luxury vehicles wedged in among car wrecks, semis, and battered pickups. By the number of women sporting cell phones and Gucci bags, I could tell this had to be the place.

Nothing smacks of upscale more than soft jazz and gourmet coffee offered at the door...in exchange for all your disposable income at checkout. And trying to blend in with shoulder-to-shoulder designer clad ladies is no mean feat when you're wearing a sweatshirt that reads "I'm not just broke, I'm FLAT BUSTED."

Arms clasped over my chest in cool detachment, I managed to observe the mysterious shopping habits of the style setters. One woman in an elegant black pantsuit was remarkably ambidextrous.

She dangled a floral wall display in one hand (a rusted conveyor belt spewing strawflowers), while wielding a yardstick in the other to measure a battered (pardon me, "distressed") bedstead.

Another impeccably dressed customer was making an appointment with her personal trainer via cell phone while cleaning out a bin of dented paint buckets priced at $30 a pop.

It didn't take me long to figure out that business was good...very good. Sadly, the proprietors wouldn't buy up my supply of used housedresses for duvet covers. And, tempted as I was, I didn't have the time to weld crankshaft candleholders for departing milady's pleasure before hi-low drivers hauled all the wrecks away.

Nevertheless, I do have a wealth of potential inventory at home. Other families may display their fine lineage in the form of Waterford crystal and Chippendale furniture. My legacy consists of the best the depression had to offer...like flea-bitten Gothic thrones my "Pop" used on his 1930's carnival midway. (After a veritable U-Haul of these treasures was bequeathed to me, I coerced my better half into bringing them home. When the local sheriff stopped us in our driveway for suspected home burglary, my husband could only respond, "Believe it or not, officer, we're taking this junk IN!")

So I know I have a more than willing partner if I want to take advantage of the trash trend. All I need is the motivation to transform my pieces into "pieces of eight" with a few good whacks from a hammer, or a coat of cottage blue paint. And, NO DEAR, parking my "Pop's" chairs next to a gasoline can and matches is NOT what I mean by motivation!

Homeowners against Loosestrife

Illinois Natural History Survey scientists will share the history of purple loosestrife - the invasive alien plant that has invaded our wetlands, threatening the biology of some of our most valuable habitats.

The presentation will cover the various efforts to control loosestrife, focusing especially on the biological control efforts that began in the 1990s. The program utilizes two species of beetles that come from the same parts of Eurasia where purple loosestrife originated. Extensive research indicates that these little herbivores will only feed on purple loosestrife.

Participants will be given materials to get started in "at home" beetle rearing. Beetles will be mailed later for either rearing and/or immediate release onto participant's property. Targeted to adult property owners and community representatives, interested youth ages 14 & up are also welcome when accompanied by an adult.

Reservations are required. Please phone Volo Bog at 815-344-1294. Ameritech Relay for the hearing impaired is 800-526-0844.

Volo Bog is an Illinois Department of Natural Resources Site located on Brandenburg Road, in Ingleside, west of U.S. Highway 12 between State Routes 120 and 134.

Explore career options and programs

The College of Lake County will hold a career-exploration evening on April 9, offering participants an opportunity to learn more about the current job outlook and career preparation programs offered at the college. Called "Career Quest: Exploring Today's Careers," the event will be held from 6 to 9 p.m. on the Grayslake Campus. It will feature a career panel of local employers speaking on the current job outlook; fun, hands-on activities allowing participants to sample a variety of career fields; and opportunities to talk one-on-one with CLC faculty, counselors and career and placement staff. Also featured will be food and prizes (including a Palm Pilot and a furnace donated through the CLC Refrigeration and Air Conditioning program). A preview presentation on the college's upcoming Technology Building also will be offered. The event is intended for high school students and their parents as well as adult job-changers.

Included in the evening's activities will be more than 30 hands-on activities involving computer animation, electronics, physical science, voice recognition software and more. Activity titles include "Anatomy of a PC," offering a look at the inner workings of a computer; "Lanes of the Information Superhighway," providing an overview of the technology that routes messages over the Internet; "On the Cutting Edge," showing what goes on in a mock operating room; and "Rocket Science in Your Car," offering a look at the complex systems in today's automobiles. Each of the activities has been designed to help participants learn more about the skills and knowledge required in career fields taught at the college, among them health care, social services, business, technologies, computer information systems, Web applications and more.

"Career Quest" is free and open to the public. Participants should register in the lobby, where they will receive a packet of information on the evening's events. For more information call 847-543-2094.

AT A GLANCE

Military families come together, pray together

Round Lake—Red, white and blue tears of pride, fear and hope for the future were shed and shared by family members of military personnel during a gathering at Robin Mayberry's home in Round Lake.

Emotions were on edge as moms, dads, grandparents and sisters of loved ones serving in the Middle East took turns crying, laughing and telling stories of their heroes so far away from home.

Mayberry is the mother of Paul Rasborschek III, 21, a 2000 graduate of Grayslake High School, who is aboard the IWO-Jima LHD-7 in the Persian Gulf.

Squad car crash kills 2 RLHS grads

Fox Lake—Two Round Lake High School graduates were remembered by their friends after they had died in a Fox Lake automobile accident.

Randy A. Varno, 23, and Daniel Schroeder, 24, were pronounced dead after the March 30 accident in the early morning hours. The accident took place at Kings Road and Route 12. The police squad car, driven by Sgt. Mark Schindler, was southbound when it was struck by a Toyota Celica, with Varno and Schroeder.

Schindler was treated for his injuries and released. He is a 10-year department veteran.

Hearing set for development lawsuit

Wauconda—Lake County Circuit Court Judge Raymond McKoski is expected to hear a motion to dismiss a lawsuit brought by township residents against the village of Wauconda.

The lawsuit challenges the procedure and zoning granted for Orchard Hills, a planned 217-unit subdivision at the former Wauconda Orchard site on Gossell Road.

Annual township meetings are on tap

Local races come down to the wire

9 lose their elections by 7 votes or less

By MARC JENKINS
Managing Editor

Although absentee votes were at an all-time high—many voters were out of town because of spring break—the overall turnout was a major disappointment, says Lake County Clerk Willard Helander.

"Apparently we had no one in town," Helander said. "But the absentee ballots were higher than that in a presidential or gubernatorial election."

Only 75,358 of the county's 344,127 registered voters turned out for the April 1 general elections.

That represents a large dip from the 2001 local elections. Helander said roughly 22 percent voted this year, while 2001 saw 29 percent, 1999 saw 25 percent and 1997 saw 27 percent.

Unfortunately for some, those were votes they desperately needed, as nine races were decided by only seven votes or less.

In the Lakeland Newspapers coverage area, 26 candidates found themselves under a hundred votes from victory.

The hard-luck loser of election night had to be Shawn Vogel of Grayslake, running for village trustee. Vogel was hoping that three times would be a charm in his third attempt at the post. He fell three shy of incumbent Paul Reblin.

Vogel said he will probably ask for a recount.

"I'm not doing it to be spiteful,"

Oh, so close

Eight local races were decided by 10 votes or less in the April 1 general election. Those who missed by the slimmest of margins are:

Candidate	Short
Jerome A. Saxon, Dist. 68 S.B.	2
Paul Lulofs, Fox Lake trustee	3
Shawn Vogel, Grayslake trustee	3
Bud Osmond, Lake Villa trustee	3
Lisa Isaac, Zion Dist. 6 S.B.	4
Yolanda Lomeli, RL trustee	5
J. Bart Eiduke, Gavin Dist. 37 S.B.	6
William Schmid, RL trustee	7
Robert Ellis, Grandwood Park Dist.	7

Absentee ballots climb to all-time high

According to Lake County Clerk Willard Helander, absentee ballots were at an all-time high in the 2003 Consolidated Election.

The county received 11,195 absentee ballots, more than double the 4-5,000 received during the 2001 Consolidated Election.

Helander attributed the heavy absentee vote to the coincidental timing of spring break with referenda in eight Lake County school districts. "Referendum committees worked harder to get people to vote before they left," she said.

Absentee ballots were received at the county clerk's office on March 31, and then returned to the local precincts to be tabulated. They were opened and passed through voting machines when the polls closed.—By Brenda Balin-Beitscher

Stars to land on links in celebrity tour here

By JOHN PHELPS
Sports Editor

Where else can fans see some quality golf while interacting with the players without being shunned?

The Celebrity Players Tour is your ticket.

The inception of the CPT was in 1996, when Lake Tahoe, Nev. served as the only stop. But now, entertainers, former athletes and even a handful of politicians have the opportunity to showcase their golfing talents by competing in any one or all of the tour's 12 stops nationwide.

"Our goal is to entertain corporate America," said renowned comedian Tom Dreesen, a veteran of the celebrity golf circuit. Dreesen's stand-up routine opened for the legendary Frank Sinatra for 13 years. He has also made over 600 television appearances, including over 60 on the "Tonight Show."

"Many fans are shunned by the pros, so to speak, when they seek an autograph or just want to interact with players," added Dreesen. "They get no bang for their buck. With our tour, we want to know who everyone is, and we want you to know who we are."

Dreesen, no stranger to the golfing world, especially to Pro-AM's like the AT & T and the Bob Hope Classic, where he serves as emcee, jumped on the CPT bandwagon four years ago. He saw it as a good way to cater to corporate America while also raising money for his main charity, the Multiple Sclerosis Foundation.

The Tom Dreesen Celebrity Invitational was held at Lake Geneva Spa and Resort for the first three years.

Now, Dreesen and tournament director Larry

Scott gets voters' nod as new Fox Waterway Agency chair

By STEVE PETERSON
Staff Reporter

A member of the first Fox Waterway Agency (FWA) board of directors is the agency's new chairman.

Howard "Bud" Scott of Lake Villa Township edged Phil Bartmann of Johnsburg. The unofficial vote was Scott with 6,194 votes to Bartmann's 5,910 votes. Bartmann won in McHenry County, but Scott took Lake County, 3,808 votes to 2,780 for Bartmann.

Scott was last on the board in 1991, but plans to do much homework before he is sworn into office next month.

"I have a month to get up to speed. I met with Ingrid (Enriquez, executive director) and said that I would stay out of the staff's hair until after the election. If elected, I plan to camp out at their front door and get caught up to speed," Scott said.

"I come to the board with no axes to grind, no agendas," he added.

"I'm disappointed, but the voters have spoken. I did much better than I thought in Lake County. I am 100 percent behind Scott, and I will work with him," Bartmann said.

Bartmann serves as FWA treasurer. He will continue on as a director from McHenry County.

Bartmann said that he is pleased that the two incumbents won their director's spots from McHenry County. Jane Hummel had 3,451 votes and Nancy Cwynar totaled 2,898. Bill Brockman had 2,241 and Marshall Lowe, Jr. finished with 1,955 votes. Lowe is the current FWA chairman. Michael Mueller Sr., of Antioch, was unopposed for the Lake County director slot.

"I am glad that the two other board members from McHenry County got in. They are both doing a fine job," Bartmann said.

"One of the challenges will be to secure funding besides sticker fees. The agency can't get along with just sticker fees," Scott said.

Scott is well known in the Fox Lake area and the Chain O' Lakes. He retired after 31 years at Grant High School. He has been associated with the following: The Fox Lake Chamber of Commerce, American Legion, Lions Club, Moose Club, GCHS Board of Education, Lake County Board and Forest Preserve Board member. Scott was named to head Fox Lake's Centennial Committee.

The FWA was created in 1983. It is based in Fox Lake, with directors elected from Lake and McHenry counties. It was created by an act of the General Assembly. Its mission is to improve and maintain the Fox River and Chain O' Lakes public waterway from the Wisconsin border to the Algonquin dam for recreational uses, to restore environmental quality, control flooding and promote tourism.

CELEBRITY

Heck have their sights set on moving the CPT tour stop from Lake Geneva to the Chicago area.

"We thought this would be a great market—corporate Chicago," said Heck. "We've had talks with several other courses in the Chicago area. It looks like Bolingbrook Golf Club, outside of Chicago, will be the spot. It is a new course that was ranked in the top-10 Best New Courses to Play by Golf Digest Magazine. It will be a good test for the players."

Heck and Dreesen joined moderator Hal Coxon on the panel for the monthly Lake County Power Breakfast held at Midlane Resort in Wadsworth.

Along with discussing the CPT's move to the Chicago area, the trio talked about how the tour is very spectator-friendly.

"We have two pro-am events prior to a two-day championship tournament (for the CPT players), fabulous on-stage shows and entertainment every night, spectator galleries, VIP hospitality tents, and fans get to see a broad range of players," said Heck. "Basically, you don't have to be a golf fan to enjoy the CPT."

Dreesen and Heck said the CPT is for players with a 10-handicap or less. Anywhere from the top five or 10 players are with the best low gross are in the money.

Originally, the tour had started because it gave athletes who are past their playing days the chance to keep the competitive juices going.

"Athletes start competing in grade school, then high school, then college and the pros," said Dreesen. "Then all of a sudden, it's over! The CPT allows them to keep competing. It's like a last bastion for them. They also like being around people. And there are some pretty good players out there. Not like the caliber of the PGA Tour or whatnot, but we have about 20 scratch players."

Former Pittsburgh Pirates pitcher Rick Rhoden has been the Tiger Woods of the tour, having won over two million dollars in his seven years of playing on the circuit.

As mentioned the CPT draws players from all walks. Entertainers like Smokey Robinson, the Gatlin Brothers and Jack Wagner, former All-pro athletes such as Johnny Bench, Dan Marino and Charles Barkley—you name it—the CPT has it.

The CPT event in Bolingbrook will be held the week of Aug. 27-30. The CPT currently has 133 players on board. Each event generally consists of an outstanding field of 60 celebrities.

but I don't have anything to lose. Three votes is pretty close, so you never know."

Round Lake's Yolanda Lomeli missed election to village trustee by five votes, but won't ask for a recount.

"Probably not. I think I'm going to take my loss in stride," Lomeli said. "It was very close and there's a good possibility I'll run again in two years."

Bud Osmond, a Lake Villa trustee candidate, look for a recount. Osmond came up three votes short in his election try.

"He won't do that, it's not in our nature, it's not worth it to put Joyce through that," said Osmond's wife, Joanne.

With about one-out-of-five registered voters going to the polls, it makes the result sometimes hard to swallow.

Having narrow margins of victory or defeat can all be just a matter of where your name appears on the ballot, said Wadsworth four-time trustee Glenn Ryback.

"What a difference being first on the ballot order makes," said Ryback, who himself was almost bumped from office, winning the third spot by only 11 votes.

Helander couldn't point the finger as to why turnout was so low this year, but she wondered why voters wouldn't come out stronger in their own backyards.

"It's not uncommon, but more people are voting for president or governor than someone they see in their community every day," Helander said. "The people that take the biggest chunk out of tax bill were right there to vote for."

Staff reporters Brenda Balin-Beitscher, Elizabeth Guard and Jeff Zachary contributed to this report.

Late tax bills not a bargain

Late arrival of real estate tax bills this year, approximately three weeks behind the normal schedule, comes as a mixed blessing to taxpayers. Sure, you'll have close to an extra month before coming up with the first installment, but repercussions could be costly.

Most of the reverberations of late bills will be felt by the schools whose revenue streams will be interrupted. The response of school treasurers will be to sell tax anticipation warrants so bills can be paid. School districts did not budget for this unanticipated expense.

What happened was a delay on the part of the Illinois Dept. of Revenue in determining the state multiplier. County treasurers and the local tax extension personnel weren't able to begin computing tax bills until this week. It's a relay race where county officials stood by waiting to spread levies, compute taxes, print and mail bills.

Lake County Treasurer Robert Skidmore and his staff will be working as fast as they can to catch up. Even cutting time with every possible efficiency, there still is a 30-day statutory gap before tax payments have to be made. Skidmore has pledged to begin dispersing funds to taxing bodies within 10 days once payments start rolling.

It would be unfair to read any partisan implications into the snag in Springfield. The new Democratic administration inherited a telling shortage of experienced manpower triggered by the Republican administration offering early retirement opportunities to state employees. Acceptance of buy-out packages left the Dept. of Revenue with depleted ranks.

Because of budgetary problems, the state also is dispensing this year with an extra remittance to school districts in June that normally eases the burden of stretching existing income until the new fiscal year begins July 1. The old saying about "It never rains but what it pours" was never more true than this year.

New mission for Great Lakes

Outwardly, Great Lakes Naval Training Center remains unchanged, an imposing military facility that has been an integral part of Lake County life for nearly a century. Inwardly, though, the Great Lakes mission has changed immeasurably.

In a sweeping change in Naval training and education, Great Lakes now has the added mission of being the home of the new Naval Service Training Command (NSTC), a reconstruction that places all the U.S. Navy's initial training program with the exception of the Naval Academy at Annapolis, Md., under a single command.

Rear Adm. Ann E. Rondeau, formerly Great Lakes commander, now is NSTC commander.

The new assignment for Adm. Rondeau and Great Lakes is designed to enhance training and support officers and sailors. The new command at Great Lakes will be responsible for curriculum development and resource management offered at such disparate locations as Pensacola, Fla., Newport, R.I., and college and high school ROTC programs throughout the nation.

Initially, Adm. Rondeau reacted to her new assignment with good humor. "It means I'm going to be traveling a lot." Getting down to business, the popular Navy leader explained that a unified command with enhanced training and professionalism all along the line, ending with the assurance that the Navy is manned by warfighters ready and able to answer any challenge.

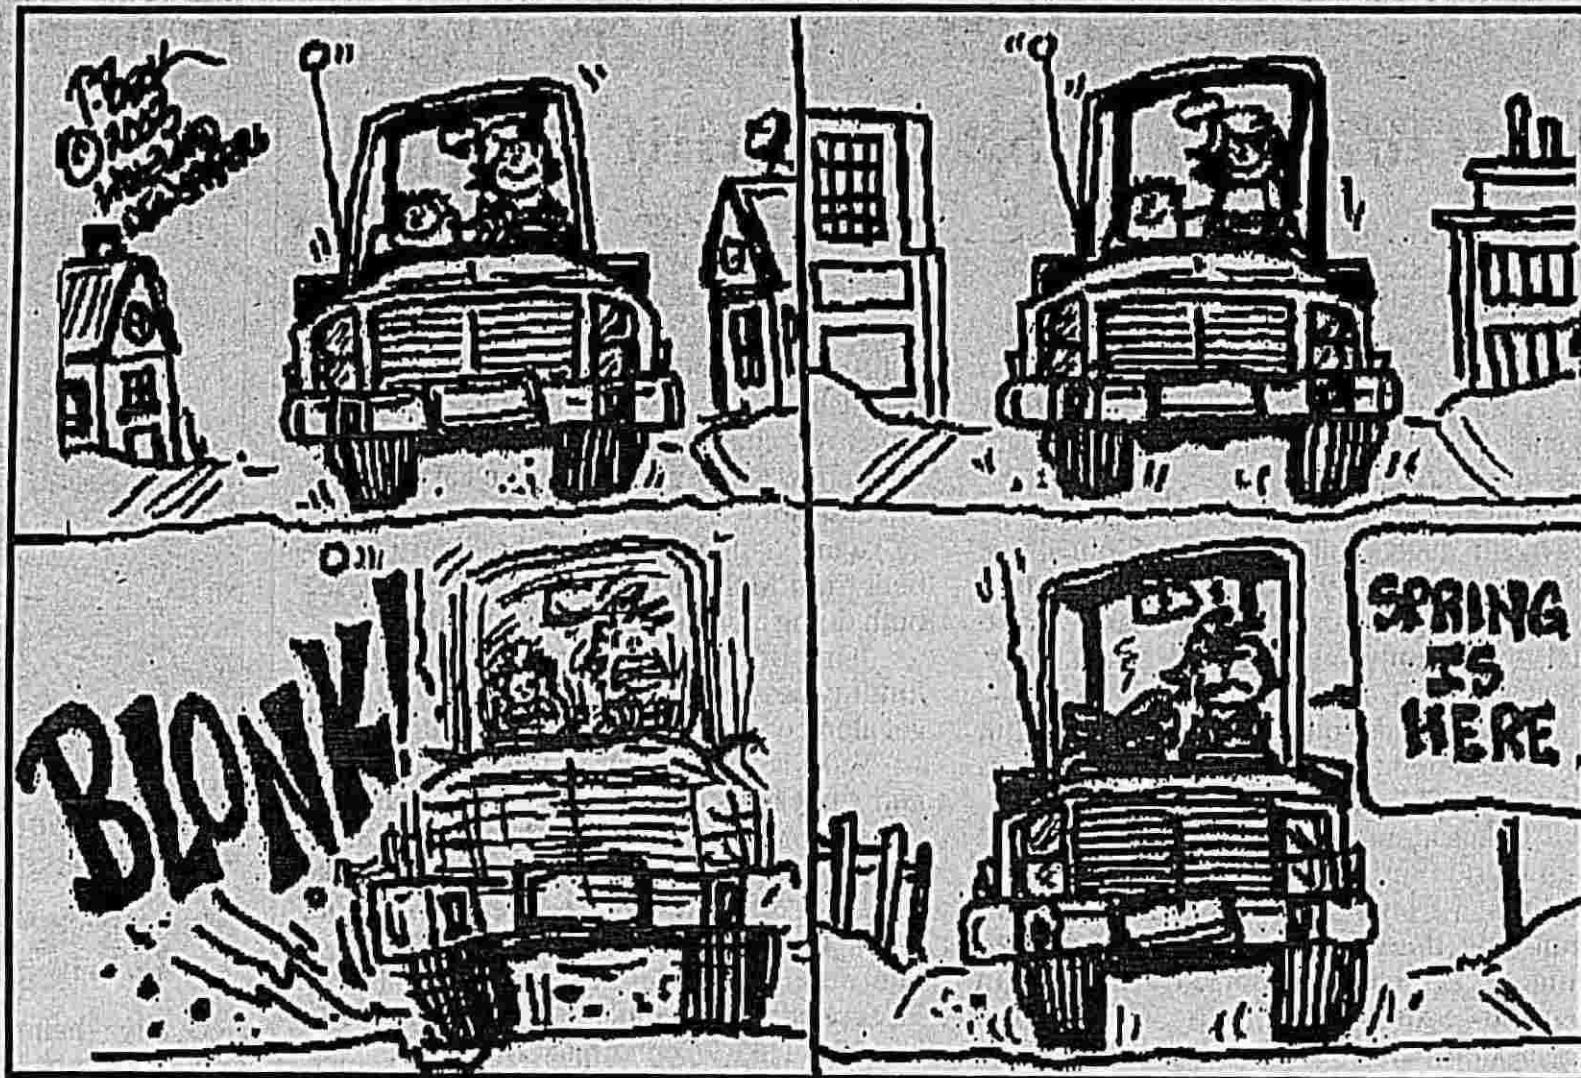

With our nation at war, it's sobering to know that neighboring Great Lakes Naval Training Center plays a significant role in the protection of our freedoms and providing for the safety of America.

Town meeting enticing

Now that March Madness is behind us and the new baseball season is just beginning, what's for entertainment? Here's a suggestion: Take in the annual town meeting Tuesday, April 8.

Unless you're a government junkie, the town meeting might be foreign to you. Required by statute to be held the second Tuesday of every April, the town meeting is an opportunity for electors (that's all of us) to get updated on affairs of the township in which we live and take part in governing for the coming year. Talk about a hands-on opportunity. The town meeting, a throwback from historic New England-style town meetings, is the most democratic gathering in the American system of self-government, affording citizens an on-the-spot opportunity to speak out and make decisions.

Generally speaking, Lake County's 18 townships are more aggressive than ever in developing social service programs so there's lots to talk about. And, the neat thing is that citizens have a direct say-so on the spot at the annual meeting. If that is not enticement enough, some of the townships ever serve refreshments afterwards.

VIEWPOINT

Darren, Dusty spark new hope

Now that another baseball season is underway, hopes on the North Side (that includes our corner of the universe) are running high for a banner Cubs year. That usually means something like 10 or 12 more wins than last year, doesn't it?

For one thing, there will be more dash and verve on display, the dash being supplied by young Darren Baker as he scampers out to retrieve a bat or ball, and the verve being supplied by his dad, Dusty, whose always-on-the-move toothpick alone will provide new found managerial animation, a quality that has been in short supply among Cub skippers for a long time.

There's a lot to like about the 2003 Cubbies besides their lively new manager. Solid starting pitching. Two new catchers. A couple of lefties who know how to get opposing hitters out. Late inning setup men who understand their job. Bench players with credentials. And, above all, two infield "gamers" brought over from the Dodgers who are bona fide big leaguers. Sorry Hee Seop and Bobby.

From this corner, we see Dusty Baker's challenges as finding a reliable closer (is Baker lucky?), teaching Sammy Sosa to hit home runs when they count (is Baker a communicator?), and convincing his bosses that Corey Patterson should be batting deep in the lineup or at Des Moines (is Baker a politician?)

BILL SCHROEDER

The starting trio of Kerry Wood, Mark Prior and Matt Clement would be in every body's starting rotation. Sammy will be Sammy, meaningless long shots and all. Dusty Baker knows what it takes to win. But if Chicago threatens in the National League this year it will be because of the contributions of Mark Grudzielanek and Eric Karros, the veteran newcomers from LA who know how to get the job done. As the sports pundits explain, they've got the intangibles that make a difference.

Speaking of intangibles, expect that Ron Santo's inspiration and Steve Stone's insightful baseball sense rub off on the fellows on the field. Look for the W flag to be flying more often over Wrigley this summer.

Getting in touch

Gail Worley Permenter, just back from a trip to Vietnam, is inviting inquiries about Sons and Daughters in Touch, an organization of people whose fathers died in the Vietnam War. The Wauconda resident's father served in 1967-78 and was killed when his plane was shot down near Hue. "The trip was a great success and generated much healing and bonding among the members as well as the veterans and support staff who accompanied us," Permenter told this column. She noted somberly that the group expects to add members, considering war in Iraq. Gail can be reached at 847-526-2948 or by e-mail at GPerment@aol.com

Young flyers

Jennifer Dille of Antioch, Adam Nagao of Grayslake and David Penney of Lake Zurich are members of the award-winning University of Illinois Precision Flying Team that is defending regional champion for competition sponsored by the National Intercollegiate Flying Assn. Penney was awarded top pilot honors. The three Lake County flyers and their teammates will be flipping pancakes Thursday, April 27, at a breakfast at Rantoul Air Museum to help raise money for team expenses.

Police cars—not to be used as billboards

When I served in the legislature, there was a private enterprise program that just started and provided school districts with daily free television programming with up-to-date news and interesting subjects. All for nothing. Hard to resist and many schools signed up for it as a way to teach their students.

In my formative years, I was told to always be leery of "something for nothing." There's always a catch to it. Now that I am a senior citizen, I have found how sage that warning was. Too many have fallen for "freebies," especially seniors who have been taken in by what later become costly scams.

With regards to the free television in schools, what I perceived as the "catch to it" was that the daily programs carried commercials, like candy or cereals that might catch the eyes of the young viewers. So, I introduced legislation which would have prohibited such advertising gimmicks to students in their formative years. I knew that my bill wouldn't pass; after all, schools like to think that it's great to get something for nothing especially when it can be a learning tool. But, I wanted to begin a dialogue on the issue of a public school accepting advertising that would be forced upon students in their formative years. If nothing else, I thought that raising the issue might bring closer attention to what forms those commercials would take in the future.

The legislation did fail, as I knew that it would. It did cause the company to send a company representative, or lobbyist, to Springfield to convince the legislature how responsible it was in choosing the advertising that it used in the programming.

All of the above relates to an advertising scheme that is more bizarre, but is taking some "baby steps," and being "sucked in" by some city and village police departments across the country. It isn't exactly a "freebie," but as close as you can come to one. A company provides police cars to police departments for the mere price of $1 for three years. How can you pass that up? After all, new police cars are big budget items for police departments.

The "catch to it" is that the police departments who accept this "deal" must allow the company to use space on those police vehicles for advertising purposes. I'll bet that you're thinking that any entrepreneur can offer such a deal but no one will fall for it. Wrong. I understand that they are near 30

PARTY LINES

PARTY LINES, THE LAKELAND NEWSPAPERS' COLUMN OF POLITICAL OPINION, IS PREPARED FROM STAFF REPORTS.

Libertarians push Hispanic outreach

Lake County Libertarians are energized to attract Hispanics as part of a strategy to become a significant third party.

The county organization has a regional branch, Northeast Lake County Libertarians, serving the greater Waukegan area. Gus Perez of Zion has been put in charge of outreach efforts.

At a pre-election meeting in Waukegan, Alma Read, a bilingual speaker running for the Des Plaines School Board, dispelled myths of bilingual education. Perez said Libertarians support dual language programs where there is more emphasis on English as opposed to popular bilingual education where the emphasis is on teaching in Spanish. "Hispanic children get short-changed in bilingual programs, maybe getting only one hour a day in English," Perez pointed out.

A former Navy reservist and owner of a masonry contracting business, Perez issued an invitation to interested persons to attend a Libertarian meeting at 7 p.m., Friday, April 11, at In-Laws Restaurant in Gurnee.

Undermining Osmond

Wonderment is mounting in Republican ranks why the Republican Assembly of Lake County, a conservative activist group, continues jabbing at State Rep. JoAnn D. Osmond (R-Zion). The Assembly is led by Guy Garrison of Zion, who sought appointment for state representative to fill the vacancy created by the untimely death of former State Rep. Tim Osmond.

Venita visiting

Friends and former neighbors of Venita McConnell were buoyed by her visit to Wauconda where she once served as village clerk. McConnell now resides in Mount Carroll in west central Illinois where she demonstrated her involvement in Republican affairs by organizing a Lincoln Day dinner for 300 persons featuring an address by U.S. Sen. Peter Fitzgerald. McConnell is a past president of the 8th District Republican Club and once sought election as Lake County clerk.

Expert shovelers

When ground was broken for the new fire and rescue station serving College of Lake County, observers diplomatically called a tie between Grayslake Mayor Tim Perry and Fire Chief Don Mobeley for the heaviest shovel of earth. Always ready with a quip, Perry remarked, "I can really shovel it." The $2.1 million facility will be manned by Grayslake Fire Dept. personnel. The station will be located on Brae Loch Road.

Fitting the times

It looks like a Christmas tree. Only it isn't. A decorated fir adorns the Recorder's office in the county building. Recorder of Deeds Mary Ellen Vanderventer decided a tree decorated in red, white and blue with stars and patriotic ornaments would fit the times with the U.S. at war. Staff members supplied decorations. Let's call it a Victory Tree.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Mayor not a king

The glowing biography of Taso Maravelas in Viewpoint could lead one to believe, the writer has been out of town for the past two years. While there is no question the mayor is a hard-working guy, the endorsement missed the point entirely: even a visionary doesn't have the right to corrupt the Democratic process.

Tactics of deception and intimidation are reportedly rampant in the village hall. The mayor admits in open meetings having made decisions and long-range plans during ex-parte meetings with selected trustees and excluding others from the process. He has created new administrative and staff positions and filled them with friends and relatives, costing the taxpayers hundreds of thousands of dollars. In addition, the qualifications of many of his appointees have been questionable. He is also trying to elect to trustee a man who doesn't live in Antioch, and has even used the village attorney to defend the guy in court. At the same time, he has had his lackey, Scott Pierce, file bogus objections with the election board to exclude any candidates the mayor doesn't support, spending more of the taxpayers' time and tax money.

Over and above that, he has worked steadfastly to exclude public input or dissenting opinion from entering the process; choreographing meetings and silencing citizens. At the same time, he allows his supporters free rein at meetings and hearings, allowing them to speak spontaneously and at length, from the floor, whenever they please. His conduct has lead many people to suspect that many decisions are made in private and not at board level.

Having a vision and a plan, along with working hard are admirable traits in a mayor. But Mr. Maravelas must recognize that he was elected just that, mayor. No one elected him king. He must answer to the people.

State funding problem

The news media plays a critical role in the community, which is why the Feb. 7 editorial (Questions to ask before school vote) of generalizations and innuendo against school referenda is so detrimental.

You cite the fact that "every school district in our locality has a small band of citizens who study carefully school finances and come to the conclusion that spending is excessive and that proposed tax increases ought to be defeated." I agree these are honest, hard-working citizens who voice what they believe. What is not noted, however, is in these same communities are honest, hard-working citizens who examine the same facts and come to the conclusion the schools are, in fact, in dire straits and justified in going to referendum. Who is correct?

The editorial's main focus is election of school board members who "are spending money faster than the money is coming in." Where "revenues are increasing all the time, at least in Lake County where growth and development fuel new tax dollars." Yes, growth brings more tax money but also more burden in the form of new students. If the school funding equation didn't work before growth, it certainly does not work during growth. This is the fundamental reason all school districts in Illinois, growth or no growth, are facing the same threat of budget deficits.

You casually dismiss substantive issues by saying "Oh, the state gets blamed for insufficient funding of public education and tax cap legislation comes in for its share of criticism."

If a handful of school districts were operating at a deficit then I would heartily agree with you; these schools must learn to operate within their means. They could learn from other, better run districts. However, in 1997, 173 of 894 (19 percent) school districts in Illinois were operating at a deficit. This number increased to 341 (38 percent) in 1999 and to 540 (60 percent) in 2002. It is projected by 2004, 80 percent of schools will be under water. It is not simply explained away by an economic downturn. Mr. Editor, when will you define this as a crisis? At what point do you accept that it is the system that is broken?

You claim mismanagement is the problem because "As one Lakeland superintendent opined, there is an inability on the part of leadership to keep spending and income in balance." Whichever superintendent made that claim, his ex-boss, the former Illinois State Superintendent of Schools, Robert Leininger, would like to speak to him. Mr. Leininger was chairman of the Educational Funding Advisory Board a panel which has recently recommended sweeping legislative changes to the Illinois' school aid formula. No. Mr. Editor, 80 percent of the school boards cannot be mismanaged. There is a systemic funding problem in Illinois.

Question Osmond

Our new State Rep. JoAnn Osmond (R-Antioch) has displayed a profound lapse in judgment during her first month in office. She voted YES on the new Equal Rights Amendment (ERA) to bring this vote to the floor of the Illinois House for passage.

This bill (The ERA), in its modern form, is far more detrimental to society than the original 1974 version. This ERA has the ability to overturn marriage laws in all 50 states if it becomes part of the U.S. Constitution (by state ratification). This ERA will create ambiguity in the legal definition of marriage - that of one man to one woman. This could open a flood-gate of frivolous litigation concerning employee benefit programs and insurance claims across the country.

This ERA has to ability to overturn recent limitations on abortion since it will offer state funding for abortion.

Most pertinent to these times is that the ERA will allow liberal legislators to introduce the drafting and selection of women for combat duty. Taken to its end, get ready to have American daughters entering the caves of Afghanistan.

In summary, our new State Rep JoAnn Osmond has made a serious mistake in judgment and should be reprimanded by her constituency for this. She has not represented the people of the 61st district but rather represented her own personal liberal views about society.

Guy G. Garrison
Founder, Republican Assembly of Lake County (RALC), Zion

Not a partisan issue

To begin, I provide the full text (52 words) of the proposed Equal Rights Amendment to the U. S. Constitution, commonly referred to as the "Alice Paul Version" (1923, 1943)

Section 1: Equality of rights under the law shall not be denied or abridged by the United States of any state on account of sex.

Section 2: The Congress shall have the power to enforce, by appropriate legislation, the provisions of this article.

Section 3: This amendment shall take effect two years after the date of ratification.

In recent weeks I read several letters from frightened women proposing all types of unfounded consequences, which can be identified as the "Chicken Little" syndrome. The sky is not falling! Just where in the text do they see a mandate that women be equal to men. Woman and men are different, and what the ERA seeks is equity under the law for women. ERA has nothing to do with drafting women. Rapes in Iraq, gambling with babies lives, rampant abortions and the demise of the American family are scare tactics from the 19th and 20th Century.

Secondly, one month ago the proposed ERA passed the House Judiciary I Civil Law Committee by a bipartisan margin of 10 to 6—Republicans and Democrats.

Finally, this is not a partisan issue. Many Republican men and women support passage of the Equal Rights Amendment in Illinois. Check the facts against unfounded fears.

"sign-ups," so there are still suckers out there who will fall for just about anything.

Am I crazy, or isn't there something inherently wrong with allowing a squad car to patrol adorned with some form of advertising on the vehicle? I don't care if the product is as good as "motherhood and apple pie," advertising any commercial product on a public police vehicle is just outrageous.

I have not yet learned where on the police cars these forms of advertising are being placed or what types of products are being advertised. It doesn't matter. None of it is good. Now that they have begun, someone will think of ingenious ways to "sell their merchandise."

When I discussed this issue with a couple of friends, they laughingly thought of different items that might be sold on these public moving billboards. The one that I thought was the "funniest," and then again it is not so funny, was the one that said that a lawyer might advertise his services for anyone arrested for driving under the influence of alcohol.

Someone once said that "there is nothing new under the sun." I guess that must be true. Hopefully, a law can be passed to put this ridiculous scheme to rest.

Annual Awards Showcase

The Lake County Convention & Visitors Bureau (LCICVB) won a state tourism award at the annual Governor's Conference on Tourism, held in Springfield.

The conference recognized tourism industry excellence through the Governor's Tourism Awards program. In the category "Beat Area Guides, Booklets, Media, or Meeting Planner Guides," the LCICVB's new Lake County Destination Guide, targeting group tour operators and meeting planners, was the winner. The three-day conference was sponsored by the Illinois Department of Commerce and Economic Opportunity, Bureau of Tourism and Visit Illinois. The educational program focused on the core competencies of tourism, with a stellar lineup of nationally renowned speakers. The conference offered the opportunity to network with key individuals in the industry and build new relationships that will help drive business and the industry forward.

Jennifer Sohn, director of sales for groups and meetings, accepted the award from Illinois Bureau of Tourism Deputy Director Cathy Ritter and Visit Illinois Chair Russell Salzman. The LCICVB collaborated efforts with the graphic design firm Tandem Design & Strategic Marketing.

Summer internships

Applications for summer internships with Illinois State Treasurer Judy Baar Topinka are available from State Senator Adeline Geo-Karis (R-Zion). The Summer Intern Program gives young adults the chance to see government up close while representing the Treasurer at fairs throughout Illinois.

Selected interns will represent the office of the treasurer at various fairs throughout Illinois. Applicants must be at least 18 years old and willing to learn various programs and services of the treasurer's office. The interns will be based in either the Treasurer's Chicago or Springfield offices with some overnight travel involved.

Anyone wanting to apply should contact Senator Geo-Karis's Zion office at 847-872-7500 to obtain an application. The completed application, along with two letters of recommendation, should be returned to the treasurer's office no later than May 2.

Child abuse prevention

A free lecture and discussion on how to help abused and neglected children will highlight National Child Abuse Prevention and Awareness Month in Lake County.

The event will elicit considerable information on how to handle child abuse problems such as the affect of the court system on children, said Terri Zenner Greenberg, executive director of the Lake County Court appointed Advocates, also known as CASA.

Keynote speaker will be attorney and author Joan L. Rehm. She serves as a hearing officer in the office of the Chief Judge, Circuit Court of Cook County. Also speaking will be Kathy Phillip, a volunteer advocate for CASA and a victim of child abuse. Greenberg said the two will discuss the affect of the Juvenile Court system on children. Their remarks are likely to move into areas of awareness and prevention of the problem.

The meeting will be held from 10 a.m.-noon on April 12, in the Four Overlook Point building of Hewitt Associates. People planning to attend, call CASA at 847-808-9154.

Shimer open house

On April 12 from 9:30 a.m.-3 p.m., Shimer College in Waukegan will be holding an open house for prospective students. The open house is for those either interested in the Every-Third-Weekend program or the traditional weekday program. Prospective students will get the opportunity to meet with a counselor, a financial aid advisor, sit in on a class and enjoy lunch with current Shimer students. For more information call 847-623-8400, or e-mail the college at openhouse@shimer.edu.

What can school do to better control classrooms?

Hi Readers,

I had a great experience last week and since it opened my eyes to something I might have been a little "off" on, I wanted to share it with you. For a long time, I have been writing about setting strong behavioral limits and my not so subtle opinions about too much medication being dispensed for behavioral/attention problems. I have especially written lots of columns about too much of this going on in the classroom. Lots of angry parents have come in basically blaming teachers for not doing anything else besides recommending medication for their child's problems. I had the privilege of doing a talk at a school and meeting some delightful teachers and Social Workers. The nice thing about this talk was that instead of my usual large audience, it was a small cozy audience which allowed us to talk. What I found out there was very interesting.

PARENT'S PLACE

After hearing all these parents who were angry at so many teachers, I was a little concerned that my "hard line limits" discussion and my "parents and teachers have lost the Alpha position" speech was not going to be well received, but to my surprise, it was not only well received, I thought I heard the word "Hallelujah" a couple times. The great thing was that these teachers wanted to do good discipline. They wanted to do what came naturally to any appropriate human being who is faced with obnoxious behavior from a child. It looked to me like there were 2 areas that made it tough for them to do what came naturally.

One was fear of parent legal reprisals and the other was what seemed like no plan of consequences with "good teeth" that was standardized from teacher to teacher. These are really good people without a good enough plan. Certainly, like all school programs, they have some strategies for dealing with out of control or inattentive behavior, but like many plans I've heard about before, they fall short in the consequence department. Plain and simple, consequences have no teeth so kids don't respect the rules or the teachers. We spoke in depth about how without basic respect of teachers and parents, even the sweetest kid will take advantage and do what comes naturally...do what is fun and not work. As I have said many times before, the secret of getting off-task behavior to be on-task, is to make it more aggravating and difficult for the child, for it to be off-task. In other words if off-task gets them in big trouble that means something to them, usually, in my experience, they don't want to go there again. That is, unless the trouble didn't mean much at all.

I still have a big problem with medicating non-life threatening, behavioral conditions and I think it's done way too much. But, where I saw it before as a decision that didn't use a lot of thought, now, I see it as good people trying to control an otherwise sometimes problematic, out of control situation. If a teacher has a classroom with 1 child who is inattentive, that is easily controlled without resorting to meds. But if that same teacher has 15 kids who are inattentive, it could drive the teacher to distraction him or herself and make him or her wonder why they ever got into teaching in the first place. Without a good behavior back-up in place, it becomes obvious why any normal human being would want to use whatever was available to make everyone's life easier. I just know from what I do, there are other very effective ways of getting to the same level of control that don't require medication. Here are some thoughts about how:

VERY IMPORTANT NOTE: I am moving my office to Grayslake! I am very excited about this move. More details to follow next week.

COLLEGE SPORTS REPORT

AREA ATHLETES MAKING THE GRADE

Heart, Coleman belong in same sentence

North Park University's Aaron Coleman waits to crash the boards during regular-season action at Carthage College. Coleman just finished up his senior year. He is a former standout for both Warren Township High School and The College of Lake County.—Photo by John Phelps

By JOHN PHELPS
Sports Editor

Statistics don't really matter to Aaron Coleman. What does matter to him is knowing he gave 100 percent every time he stepped on to the hardwood. Victories are nice, for which North Park University had 10 in its first 11 games this winter. Coleman had started five of those games, averaging around 10 per contest.

"We were without some of our big guys," said Coleman, who finished this season averaging around 10 points and five boards. "So that gave me a chance to play in the middle."

Six-foot, 2-inches, and you see him going against guys that are sometimes 5-6 inches taller. Mismatch, right? Wrong.

"He never gives you less than his best effort," said North Park sixth-year Head Coach Rees Johnson. "He just has a huge heart."

Speaking of those bigger guys, Coleman had the task of guarding College Conference of Illinois and Wisconsin power Carthage's Theo Powell during a regular season game in Kenosha.

Coleman held his own, as he did while at Warren Township High School and The College of Lake County. Powell, a junior who stands 6-feet, 8-inches, scored 19 points in an 80-69 victory.

But it was the way Coleman contested every one of Powell's shots, none of which came easy, to say the least.

"He's a pretty big guy," said the always soft-spoken Coleman. "I usually have pretty good success against the bigger players. The bigger they are, the harder I know I have to play."

In one of the first CCIW games of the year, the Vikings lost to Wheaton College but Coleman held the Thunder's 6-foot, 8-inch All-American junior center Joel Kolmodin to 19 points, including two during the last six minutes of regulation when the game was still undecided. Coleman also held Kolmodin to no offensive rebounds.

"You've got to play your 'A' game against guys like that," said Coleman.

As for the Carthage game, 'Wild Hair', as he was once and sometimes still is affectionately known as, was leaping for rebounds and blocked shot attempts right there along with Powell. He finished with 14 points and five boards in 29 minutes of action. He also dished out one assist and perhaps more importantly, had no turnovers.

"I've been working on my shot and trying to get better position inside; my shot selection is definitely better," said Coleman, who actually likes to pass more. "I played in the 2-spot over the summer in leagues. That really helped me because there was some pretty big dudes."

Rees wishes he had more players like Coleman.

"He plays a lot bigger than he looks, and you can't coach that," said the coach. "We'll miss his determination and desire, not to mention heart, in the lineup next season."

For the season, Coleman finished in the top-10 in the league in field-goal percentage. His career high was 15.

Other regional news, notes

Augustana College

Men's track and field

Jeff Lindeman (Grayslake H.S., Antioch) continued his fine work in the pole vault. Last weekend, he once again surpassed the NCAA Div.-III national qualifying standard when he leaped 15-feet, 3-and-one-half inches in winning the event during a 99-92 dual meet loss to defending NCAA champion, The University of Wisconsin-LaCrosse. At the Early Spring Opener, Lindeman met the NCAA Div.-III qualifying standard when he finished second with a leap of 15-feet, 3-inches. That was also a season-best for the senior. As a team, the Vikings cruised to the title with 351 points.

The Vikings will next host the Viking Olympics on Sat., April 5 starting at noon.

Baseball

An arm injury last year slowed down Tony Nelson, a Grayslake native and former Mundelein Mustang. He only collected 26 at-bats in 12 games. But now, Nelson is back for his senior campaign, looking to return to the glory he experienced as a freshman and sophomore. His sophomore season, Nelson batted a robust .343 with 37 hits in 108 at-bats. He is currently competing with two other Vikings for the starting nod at first base.

Last spring, Augie finished 25-16, including 13-8 in the College Conference of Illinois and Wisconsin.

Central College (Pella, Ia)

Former Antioch High standout golfer Andrew Kinney looking to make some noise as a member of the Div.-III Central College men's golf team.

During the fall season, Kinney, an all-conference, all-county and four-year varsity player while at ACHS, played in five tournaments. Of those, he played for the varsity team, or first team once, and shot rounds of 74-79.

"Right now, we're pretty solid with our top-3 players," said head golf coach Larry Happel, whose team is ranked ninth in the Div.-III National polls. "Andrew has a good head for the game, a great swing, and he's only going to get better. He just needs some time to get used to playing on the collegiate level."

According to Happel, Central has a first and second team. Kinney basically is competing every week with teammates for the 4-5 spots on the first team. If he doesn't play for the first team, he's competing for Central's second squad.

"Right now, he's definitely good enough for the second team," said the coach. "He'll play every week and is one of the top-10 players we have out there competing for us. When he gets to the point where he competes for our first team on a regular basis is just a matter of time. He's shooting for one of those last two spots on the first team for right now."

Central will look to repeat as conference champs this spring. They won their 24th unprecedented title last year. It was the 22nd time in the last 24 years they had won the league title.

Annual Motorsports Show a huge success

The 26th Annual 'Let's Go Racing Motorsports Show, the longest continuous running and largest show of its kind in the country, presented by Babicz Auto Racing Services (BARS) of Gurnee, was again a big success at the Kenosha Outlet Mall last weekend.

Portschy's Eastern Wisconsin Stock Car Association Winged Super Modified was the highest point winner from a panel of motorsports judges. The points were awarded based up the entry's appearance, completeness and showmanship. Portschy received the traditional Best Overall Championship Award sponsored by NAPA Auto Parts of Zion, from show promoter Mike Babicz and show queen Noreen Johnson, during presentations on the final day.

"I have to thank my sponsors, my crew and my family," said Portschy, who races his car on the Eastern Wisconsin Stock Car Association circuit including Sheboygan County Fair Park in Plymouth and Manitowoc Fairgrounds. "This is quite an honor."

Portschy's entry included a wooden split rail fence set up in the mall, along with chrome and lots of polish.

"As always, everyone in the show did an outstanding job with excellent looking entries," said Babicz. The show drew 72 entries of 30 different types of motorsports from three different states: Wisconsin, Illinois and Minnesota. "I commend everyone who had an entry and thank them and their crews for an outstanding job."

Babicz presented a donation to the store's Children's Miracle Network Balloon Fundraiser on behalf of show participants.

Dale Erdmann from Lake Geneva Raceway served as emcee for the awards presentation. Broadway Bob Metzler, longtime promoter of Great Lakes Dragaway in Union Grove, stopped by the show visiting fans and welcoming those in attendance at the awards. Steve Brown supplied complimentary photos to all show participants.

We Do Not Knowingly Accept Ads For Free/Giveaway Animals

If you must give up your beloved pet, please consider these suggestions.
*Free animal ads suggest that there is something wrong with the animal, or that it has no value.
*Some people who respond to these free animal ads are imposters and are only concerned about making a profit and not the animal's welfare.
*Charging a fee to a potential pet owner confirms the responsibility of pet ownership for an entire lifetime of that pet. For more information, please contact the Humane Society.

Broad and Narrow Approaches to Job Searches
By Scott T. Fleischmann

When I was about twelve years old, my father who loved outdoor sports attempted to teach me to hunt and fish. Although I never developed my dad's love for these activities, I learned several skills that would serve me well in later life. One of these skills is essential to the job search process. He took an entire afternoon to share the differences between rifles and shotguns, and when to use each. In that same session, he taught me basic gun safety and how to clean these weapons. Although this may not seem to be a complex subject to hunters, I was not familiar with the sport and needed the lesson. A shotgun is projects a large pattern of small "shot" but a rifle sends one bullet directly to a very small specific target. Just as a hunter knows when to use a shotgun and when to use a rifle each job hunter needs to know which method to use.

The Rifle Approach
Those who know exactly where their career is headed you can use the rifle approach. In this approach, a candidate researches companies that seem to meet specific career objectives. They then send a resume to those that are the best match. This is the preferred method for those who have a defined career plan because they can work toward that goal. However, those who use this method you must have a complete understanding of their goals including: skill strengths, area's for personal growth, geographic preferences, the effects of spiritual beliefs on their career, etc. For those who would like to do a study of all of these factors, I suggest the book What Color Is Your Parachute? 2000 (Bolles, Thomas Nelson: Berkeley, CA: Ten Speed Press, 1999). This book will help to analyze each factor that could influence a job search. It is updated every two to three years and is available at most libraries and bookstores.

The Shotgun Approach
Those who do not have specific career goals and a detailed plan on how to meet those objectives need to take a broader approach. They need to look at all of the opportunities that are available. They will send a resume to the every company that may have a job opening. They will then be considered for varying job opportunities, many of which they may never have considered. The goal is to get in the door to interview at many companies in order to see if they have a job that is a good skill and experience match. One of the difficulties of this method is that the candidate has not yet identified what the right job looks like. Subsequently, identifying a good job when it is available may not be easy. In the next column, we will explore how to know that right job when using the shotgun approach.
